

Players

Quarterback (QB) — Quarterback leadership

- Directs the offense by reading defenses, adjusting plays at the line, and distributing the ball through passes or handoffs. QBs must make fast decisions under pressure and often serve as the on-field extension of the coaching staff.

Running Back (RB) — Running back versatility

- Handles rushing plays, pass protection, and short-range receiving. RBs must combine vision, agility, and strength to exploit defensive gaps and keep the offense balanced.

Wide Receiver (WR) — Wide receiver route running

- Specializes in creating separation from defenders and catching passes at all levels of the field. WRs also contribute to blocking on outside runs and screen plays.

Tight End (TE) — Tight end hybrid role

- Functions as both a blocker and a receiver, making them one of the most versatile offensive positions. TEs help protect the quarterback, open lanes for runners, and exploit mismatches against linebackers or safeties.

Offensive Line (OT, OG, C) — Offensive line protection

- Forms the core of the offense by protecting the quarterback and creating running lanes. Linemen must communicate constantly to handle blitzes, stunts, and defensive shifts.

Defensive Line (DE, DT) — Defensive line disruption

- Controls the line of scrimmage by stopping the run and pressuring the quarterback. Their ability to collapse the pocket sets the tone for the entire defense.

Linebacker (LB) — Linebacker defensive leadership

- Acts as the defense's central decision-maker, reading plays quickly and reacting to both run and pass threats. LBs must be physical enough to tackle and agile enough to cover receivers or tight ends.

Cornerback (CB) — Cornerback coverage skills

- Matches up against wide receivers to prevent completions and disrupt timing. CBs rely on speed, technique, and anticipation to defend deep routes and quick passes.

Safety (S) — Safety field vision

- Provides deep coverage to prevent big plays while also supporting the run defense. Safeties often act as the last line of defense and must diagnose plays rapidly.

Kicker / Punter / Long Snapper — Special teams specialists

- Handle field goals, punts, kickoffs, and precision snapping. Their consistency can dramatically influence field position and scoring opportunities.

Coaching Staff

Head Coach — Head coach leadership

- Oversees the entire football operation, sets team culture, and makes high-level strategic decisions. The head coach manages staff, game plans, and in-game adjustments.

Offensive Coordinator — Offensive strategy design

- Designs the offensive system, calls plays, and develops the quarterback. Works closely with position coaches to ensure the offense executes efficiently.

Defensive Coordinator — Defensive scheme creation

- Builds the defensive philosophy, game plans, and play calls. Responsible for adjusting coverages, blitz packages, and personnel groupings.

Special Teams Coordinator — Special teams management

- Oversees all kicking, punting, and return units. Ensures players understand assignments and prepares situational strategies like onside kicks or fake punts.

Position Coaches — Position-specific coaching

- Work directly with players at each position to refine technique, film study, and situational awareness. They translate coordinator strategies into daily drills.

Assistant / Quality Control Coaches — Quality control analysis

- Support coordinators with film breakdown, scouting tendencies, and preparing practice materials. Often serve as developmental coaches gaining experience.

Strength & Conditioning

Director of Sports Performance — Sports performance oversight

- Leads the entire physical development program, integrating strength training, conditioning, and sports science. Ensures players maintain peak performance throughout the season.

Strength Coaches — Strength training programs

- Develop individualized workouts to improve power, speed, and durability. They monitor progress and adjust training loads to prevent fatigue.

Sports Science Staff — Sports science monitoring

- Uses data and technology to track player workload, biomechanics, and recovery. Helps reduce injury risk and optimize training intensity.

Medical Staff

Team Physicians — Team medical care

- Provide medical evaluations, diagnose injuries, and oversee treatment plans. They collaborate with trainers and therapists to ensure safe return-to-play decisions.

Head Athletic Trainer — Athletic training leadership

- Manages daily medical operations, injury prevention programs, and rehabilitation coordination. Serves as the primary link between players and medical staff.

Assistant Athletic Trainers — Injury treatment support

- Handle taping, treatment sessions, and ongoing injury management. They support both practice and game-day medical needs.

Physical Therapists — Rehabilitation therapy

- Guide players through recovery exercises and long-term rehab plans. They focus on restoring mobility, strength, and functional movement.

Nutritionist / Dietitian — Player nutrition planning

- Designs meal plans tailored to each player's body type, goals, and recovery needs. Works with chefs and trainers to ensure optimal fueling.

Football Operations

Owner / President — Franchise leadership

- Sets the long-term vision for the organization and oversees major business and football decisions. Represents the team at league meetings and strategic discussions.

General Manager — Roster construction

- Builds the team through drafts, trades, and free agency. Balances talent evaluation with salary cap strategy to maintain competitiveness.

Player Personnel Directors — Player evaluation management

- Coordinate scouting efforts and guide decisions on roster moves. They ensure the team's talent pipeline remains strong.

College Scouts — College scouting

- Travel nationwide to evaluate draft prospects, attend games, and gather background information. Their reports shape draft boards and long-term planning.

Pro Scouts — Pro player evaluation

- Analyze current NFL players for potential trades, signings, or opponent preparation. They study film to identify strengths, weaknesses, and scheme fits.

Salary Cap / Contracts Staff — Contract and cap management

- Structure player contracts, manage cap space, and model long-term financial scenarios. They ensure compliance with league rules while maximizing roster flexibility.

Analytics & Video

Analytics Staff — Data-driven strategy

- Use advanced statistics to support decisions on play-calling, roster moves, and game strategy. They provide insights on tendencies, probabilities, and efficiency.

Video Coordinators — Film breakdown operations

- Record, organize, and distribute practice and game footage. Their work enables coaches and players to study opponents and self-scout.

Technology Support — Football tech systems

- Maintain tablets, communication systems, and digital tools used by coaches and players. They ensure technology runs smoothly during practices and games.

Team Operations

Equipment Managers — Equipment logistics

- Handle uniforms, helmets, pads, and all player gear. They ensure everything is fitted, maintained, and ready for practices and games.

Travel & Logistics — Team travel coordination

- Organize flights, hotels, buses, and schedules for road games. They manage complex itineraries to keep the team on time and prepared.

Operations Assistants — Daily operations support

- Assist with practice setup, administrative tasks, and facility coordination. They help keep day-to-day football activities running smoothly.
